3. From an extract from the artizan inam register received from the Collector relating to the Barike inam of Shotticem Thippagondanammadi village it will be observed that field No 32 (Dry) shows the following details.

Dry. No 32	6.13	6-14-0.

The ext & assessment noted in the artizan inam register as reported by the C requires correction / for the reasons stated below.

(1) The At the time of the inam settlement of personal inam the account relied on was the Poimash account and corrections in the Personal inam registers in respect of classification, extent &c are made with reference to the particulars given in that account. The Poimash Register relating to this case shows the extent of 2.86 guntas relating to S. No 32. This extent when converted comes to ~~about~~ 7.17 acres.

(2) The ditwar account prepared under the orders of Government in 1857 shows field No 32 under classification 'Dry' with an extent of 7-1-13 (7.04 acres) assessed at ~~and assessment~~ of Rs 6-10-0.

(3). The 'B' Register of the village also shows the same extent and assessment as those entered in the ditwar account relating to S. No 32 (Dry).

The extent shown in the Poimash register almost Ditwar account tallies with that entered in the old 'B' Register.

The details given in the above 2 accounts may therefore be adopted in the artizan inam register and the collector may be asked to correct the extent 6·13 a.c assessment Rs 6-14-0 into 7·01 a.c and Rs 6-10-0 respectively in the artizan Inam Register maintained by him.

For orders.

The area according to the Pairash register is 7.17 acres. 17.3.18. while that according to the ditwar account of 1857 and the old B Register of 1854 is 7·04. No assessment is entered in the pairash register. As the extent in the ditwar account and the old B register agree, it may be taken as the correct area of the artizan
